

The CEE Trust awards grants and fellowships on a regular basis throughout the year. The scope and scale of the CEE Trust grantmaking activity are determined by the size of its budget for the coming years until the end of 2012 as well as the priorities of the CEE Trust in the relevant countries.

As the remaining budget for Czech Republic, Poland, Slovakia, and Slovenia is limited, the CEE Trust discontinues the open calls in these countries. Applications for support will be considered case by case. All inquiries should be sent to the respective program director in the form of letter of intent and project application form, described in the general application procedures.

The Cross-Border initiative and the Fellowship program remain open to all countries on equal base.

Please note that the application procedure is the same for all kind of CEE Trust support!

I. CEE Trust objectives

To fulfill our mission we support people and organizations in CEE countries to take strategic steps with long-term benefits, toward three mutually reinforcing and intersecting objectives:

- to create a supportive environment for civil society, which includes legal, fiscal and political environments favorable to a strong civic life;
- to strengthen the non-profit sector through capacity building, advocacy, intra sector and cross-sectoral cooperation and partnership;
- to enhance the financial sustainability of non-profit organizations by developing public and private sources of support for nonprofit sector and by supporting the operational and strategic development of nonprofit organizations.

II. Priority areas of support

1. Accountability of Public Institutions

In a democratic society, civil society actors are one of the most effective vehicles for keeping public institutions accountable and promoting good governance in the public sphere. Specifically, civil society actors may achieve this through mechanisms such as, but not limited to:

- watchdog activities (monitoring of public practices, policies and institutions);
- contribution to development and implementation of public policies;
- advocacy;
- investigative journalism;

- strategic litigation.

Proposals should prove that the project will add significant value for the general public, or for a defined minority, through achieving transparency and accountability in public institutions or by highlighting serious problems caused by disfunctionalities of the public institutions.

2. Civic Engagement and Community Mobilization

The growing apathy of individual citizens and constituencies and a diminishing interest in public affairs endanger the foundation and stability of democracy. Stimulating participation on all levels of public life is a primary role for civil society actors. Part of this strategy should be consistent efforts to:

- educate and empower the public on their rights and role as citizens in a democracy;
- raise public awareness on critical issues;
- strengthen organizations' and groups' capacity to generate public debate on topics of importance;
- bring new voices into the public debate;
- develop civil society actors' public communication skills;
- encourage critical thinking and real public debate;
- other.

3. Solidarity in Social Life

Social solidarity is related not only to the problems of integration of disadvantaged groups that have become economically and socially marginalized throughout the region but it concerns also the connections between people through community of interests, objectives and standards. Solidarity in social life is to help the people in need to find out how to solve their problems. Civil society actors are, inarguably, one of the only voices available to speak for these groups.

The CEE Trust will support projects offering fresh ideas how to stimulate:

- mutual understanding and acceptance;

- care of the mainstream society for the poor, the elderly, the excluded;
- engagement of all parties (disadvantaged groups, NGOs, educational organizations)
- efficient partnerships to address problems of marginalized groups.

Applicants can focus on one or more areas if the proposed approach meets the challenge.

Please note that the CEE Trust does not support provision of social services for disadvantaged groups.

4. Supportive environment for civil society

Fragmentation and lack of domestic financial support in civil society are problems impeding its ability to act as a strong public voice. In some cases, the legal and fiscal environment surrounding civil society actors throws up significant barriers to their function. With an increased fight for survival, there is often more rivalry than cooperation and joint action on certain causes. Within this category, the CEE Trust encourages submission of proposals that focus on, but not limited to:

- supporting innovative sustainability mechanisms for the sector;
- encouraging consolidation;
- building partnerships and cross-sectoral cooperation;
- promoting philanthropy on all levels;
- advocating for a legal and fiscal environment that enables civil society actors to fulfill their role.

Applicants can focus on different areas if the proposed approach meets the challenge.

III. Types of support

A) In-country Programs

The CEE Trust awards grants and fellowships on a regular basis throughout the year. The scope and scale of the CEE Trust grantmaking activity are determined by the size of its budget for the coming years until the end of 2012 as well as the priorities of the CEE Trust in the relevant countries.

On October 1, 2009 the CEE Trust opens a general Call for Proposals for Bulgaria, Hungary, and Romania.

B) Cross-Border Initiatives (ongoing)

In the light of the CEE Trust mission, the Cross-Border Initiative supports leading organizations working regionally and strategic regional initiatives of 'domestic' NGOs in CEE. Eligible initiatives shall come from:

- CEE regional NGO resource and infrastructure organizations;
- CEE regional advocacy, watchdog and public policy initiatives/networks;
- CEE regional networking and information exchange initiatives/organizations (context in which CEE civil society functions);
- CEE regional cross-border grant-makers;
- CEE regional initiatives linking civil society actors with policy makers and public authorities (local, regional, national and EU levels).

A maximum grant amount has been set for up to 25,000 USD. However, the CEE Trust might be flexible as to the size of grants requested and as to the program duration as well, as long as it is reasonably justified by the applicant. Supported initiatives would preferably include significant co-funding from other sources.

Beyond above-mentioned types of initiatives, the CEE Trust Cross-Border Initiative is a flexible and responsive mechanism able to react to other opportunities as well. The CEE Trust runs the initiative in a pro-active manner and considers applications continuously. The CEE Trust is willing to cooperate with other donors in order to expand the geographic scope of its Cross-Border Initiative and is looking for solid and stable networks, not for ad hoc ideas.

The application procedure follows the steps described for the in-country programs.
